So, we view Ms. Tatsis as a Me Too witness, someone who experienced misconduct similar to what the plaintiff experienced. And in many cases, that testimony is admissible as to the plaintiff's case. MR. HEIMPEL: So the witness has given evidence that a complaint was made, the witness has given evidence that she is aware that an investigation was completed, and the witness has given evidence that the result of that investigation were communicated to her.

So, what the actual results of that investigation were, or the particulars of that investigation, I'm not sure how that bears on the relevance, so I would continue to take the same position.

Q. I'm just thinking here. Okay.

I'm going to end my questioning. Even though BlackBerry did not serve a notice of deposition as far as I'm aware, I'm going to allow BlackBerry to ask some questions that are within the scope of my direct.

MS. SCHOONOVER: Yes, my questions will be within the scope of your direct, Tony.

Would you like to take a short break, Ms. Tatsis, or are you ready to proceed now?

 - A. Yes.
- Q. And you also had a different supervisor than John Giamatteo?
 - A. Yes.
- Q. I also had a similar exhibit to Mr. Tartaglio to show you, but I'll just use his version since we already have it up. So if you could turn to his Exhibit 2, which is what we were just looking at. Give you a second to get there.

And I'll represent to you that this is the report that Morrison & Foerster prepared after

A. When I left BlackBerry.

O. He also worked in a different business unit, right?

A. Yes.

Q. Who was your direct supervisor between October 2021 and December 2023?

A. I can't recall all dates, but I moved from reporting to, from Charles Egan, who was the CTO at the time, to Mattias Eriksson, and then to Vito Giallorenzo.

- Q. And did those three people you just named also work in IoT?
- A. No. Charles Egan did not. Again, I don't know the exact timing, but Charles Egan did not. Mattias Eriksson and Vito Giallorenzo did.
 - Q. From your knowledge across those three
